

Indré is a band of friends eager to bring you a show! Formed in Northeast Ohio, Indré's sonically satisfying blend of influences can be heard in their unique sound. Their relatable songs and lively on-stage spirit will pull any audience member into their "Band Fam."

Maddie Indré fronts the band with her powerful lyrics, her voice, and her guitar. She taught herself how to play the guitar in high school and then started performing at open mics the minute she had three chords under her belt.

Maddie started as a solo artist for a couple years, and then she recruited her brother Angelo Indré to play the keys. Angelo really loved piano lessons growing up and was classically trained all through school. The two of them grew up in a music loving family and found a love for singing and playing at an early age.

Maddie and Angelo started to look for other bandmates early 2021, and they found Sam Merendino! Sam plays drums in Indré, and he has been drumming since he was a little kid.

Bassist TJ May was the next member they found, and he also tells the best dad jokes in the band. TJ has also played since he was very young. Sam and TJ both also grew up in incredibly musical families.

2023 is shaping up to be an exciting adventure for Indré. With new music on the way, travel plans in the works, and a strong bond between bandmates, the band is ready to take this upcoming year by storm. Want to see Indré play your city?
